

Plea of the Princess.

Some said of women that their heads were less:
Some men's were small; not they the least of men;
For often fineness compensated size.
Besides, the brain was like the hand, and grew
With using; thence the man's, if more was more;
He took advantage of his strength to be
First in the field. Some ages had been lost;
But woman ripen'd earlier, and her life
Was longer; and albeit their glorious names
Were fewer, scatter'd stars, yet since in truth
The highest is the measure of the man,
And not the Kaffir, Hottentot, Malay,
Nor those horn-handed breakers of the glebe,
But Homer, Plato, Verulam; even so
With woman: and in arts of government,
Elizabeth and others; arts of war,
The peasant Joan and others; arts of grace,
Sappho and others vied with any man;
And, last not least, she who had left the place,
And bow'd her state to them, that they might grow
To use and power on this Oasis, left
In the arms of leisure, sacred from the blight
Of ancient influence and scorn. . . . Everywhere
Two heads in council, two beside the hearth,
Two in the tangled business of the world,
Two in the liberal offices of life,
Two plummetts dropt for one to sound the abysses
Of science, and the secrets of the mind:
Musician, painter, sculptor, critic, more:
And everywhere the broad and bounteous Earth
Should bear a double growth of those rare souls,
Poets, whose thoughts enrich the blood of the world.

The woman's cause is man's: they rise or sink
 Together, dwarf'd or godlike, bond or free:
 For she that out of Lethe scales with man
 The shining steps of Nature, shares with man
 His nights, his days, moves with him to one goal,
 Stays all the fair young planet in her hands—
 If she be small, slight-natured, miserable,
 How shall men grow? But work no more alone!
 Our place is much: as far as in us lies,
 We two will serve them both in aiding her—
 Will clear away the parasitic forms
 That seem to keep her up, but drag her down—
 Will leave her space to burgeon out of all
 Within her—let her make herself her own
 To give or keep, to live and learn and be
 All that not harms distinctive womanhood.
 For woman is not undevelop'd man,
 But diverse: could we make her as the man,
 Sweet love were slain: his dearest bond is this,
 Not like to like, but like in difference.
 Yet in the long years liker must they grow;
 The man be more of woman, she of man;
 He gain in sweetness and in moral height,
 Nor lose the wrestling throws that throw the world;
 She mental breadth, nor fail in childward care,
 Nor lose the childlike in the larger mind;
 Till at the last she sets herself to man,
 Like perfect music unto noble words.
 And so there twain, upon the skirts of Time,
 Sit side by side, full-summ'd in all their powers,
 Dispensing harvest, sowing the To-be,

(over)

Self-reverent each and reverencing each,
 Distinct in individualities,
 But like each other ev'n as those who love.
 Then comes the statelier Eden back to men:
 Then reign the world's great bridal, chaste and calm
 Then springs the crowning race of humankind!

Alfred Tennyson.
